Laotian prisoner list in WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States today released a Communist list of American prisoners of war held in Laos, which had been omitted from a previous accounting of POWs in North and South Vietnam.

Defense Department sources said the list was turned over by North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris and that it was being transmitted to Washington. They did not immediately disclose how many names were on it.

Initially, Pentagon officials had hoped the Laotian list might add as many as 60 new names to the total of POWs already identified. But Defense sources said it did not appear the Laotian list would come even close to that figure.

Referring to the recent deaths of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lyndon B. Johnson, he said: "We join the American people in mourning the passing of these two distinguished predecessors."

Cambodia seeking US links

PARIS (UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the exiled Cambodian leader, has decided to order his armed forces to stop all offensive attacks and has stated his readiness to reconcile himself with the United States, Communist-diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said Sihanouk, now residing in Hanoi, made an announcement to this effect today on behalf of the Royal Cambodian Government of National Unity, the sources said.

Sihanouk's decision came 24 hours after the Washington announcement that White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger will be in Hanoi Feb. 10-13 to discuss Indochina's development and post-war reconstruction.

President Ford's aid of Cambodia, a unilateral cease-fire in Cambodia 24 hours after the Vietnam cease-fire went into effect.

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops wiped out an understrength South Vietnamese marine battalion trapped 10 miles below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and captured 200 paratroopers 12 miles farther south near Quang Tri, field dispatches reported today.

The Communists destroyed the entire marine force of about 100 men holding the former U.S. Navy base at the mouth of the Cuu Viet River just below the DMZ with heavy shelling and ground attacks, military sources said.

The Marines had been trapped since Sunday when they cut the main Communist supply line there. Early today, a 1,000-man North Vietnamese army force waded across the Thach Han River and miles south of Quang Tri City, 12 miles below Cuu Viet, and stormed through the paratroopers, field dispatches reported.

Quang Tri was reported under direct military threat.

The cease-fire appeared to be slowly taking effect in most of Vietnam although heavy fighting has been reported in the Mekong Delta and in the Quang Tri area. In Saigon, would-be peace-keepers from Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia, who were supposed to have begun the talks last Tuesday, straightened out a fraction of their procedural wrangling and announced they would fly north to Hanoi Friday.

Government officials said they hoped the four-nation International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) could bring an early end to the fierce fighting on the northern front where the South Vietnamese military spokesmen said that in the first 100 hours after the order to stop fighting, the Communists had violated the cease-fire 1,188 times. They said at least 2,777 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, 99 government soldiers and 19 civilians had been killed.

UPI Correspondent Donald A. Byers, reporting from the northern sector, said he was told three U.S. Navy gunships were offshore near the old Chu Viet base but did not intervene to help the trapped South Vietnamese because of the cease-fire in effect since Sunday.

The South Vietnamese and the Communists attacked in the Cuu Viet area after the truce, but Hanoi said the Saigon troops moved in after the cease-fire and cut the main North Vietnamese supply route there. Heavy fighting continued for five days.

Investment military sources told him the 4th Marine Battalion of about 100 men was totally lost and reports of no survivors.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman in Saigon conceded the Marines had suffered "more than 100" casualties in a barrage of "several thousand mixed rounds."

Blaine road route picked

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News writer

HAILEY — Proposed routing for U. S. Highway 93 through Blaine County has been narrowed down to basically the existing corridor with improvements.

A progress report on State Department of Highway plans was presented Wednesday to the Blaine County Commissioners as part of a series of meetings with local governmental groups.

The report also consisted of possible options in deviations from the existing corridor — including alternative routes through cities — which are under consideration.

Present at the meeting were Howard Johnson and Everett Kidner, Shoshone Highway district engineers; and Doug Myhre, who will serve as project manager for a corridor environmental impact study.

Johnson said four other corridors, proposed last spring, had been eliminated for improving Highway 93 between the junction with State Highway 68 and the U.S. Forest boundary near the North Fork of the Big Wood River and for improvement of State Highway 75 from Ketchikan to Sun Valley.

The response at the beginning of the corridor study indicated residents were more or less in favor of improving the existing corridor with minor changes in alignment, Johnson said.

Heath arrives for Nixon meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath was welcomed to the White House today for what President Nixon said would be "the most important talks" and told the President Britain admired his steadfastness in pursuing peace in Vietnam.

Heath and Nixon got down to discussing bilateral relations immediately after a colorful welcoming ceremony on a cloudy, chilly day in the White House south lawn.

Standing on a raised platform following a 15-gun salute and playing of national anthems, Nixon welcomed Heath as the first head of state to Washington in his second term. He held the prime minister.

"The cornerstone of the American policy — and ours — is terms of promoting the cause of peace and progress is the great alliance of which we are a party."

He said that the two days of talks which he told "newsmen" Wednesday would be enormously important, "will be very helpful to us in developing a common policy toward an era of peace, not only in the Atlantic but in the Pacific — and we trust in the world."

Said Heath, "My visit comes at an auspicious moment, so soon after the signature of the Vietnam agreement.

"We in Britain have admired the steadfastness with which you have pursued this objective, and the confidence with which you

Stennis listed little better

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Veteran Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi was reported slightly improved today from a heart ailment which he had in a hospital in Walter Reed Hospital's intensive care unit.

As police confirmed today, Stennis had no apparent new ailments.

The 71-year-old Democrat's doctors said he is "slightly improved" since Wednesday but still was in a "very serious" condition.

The terminology "very serious" at the Army hospital, a spokesman said, translates to "critical in most hospitals."

Peter Esker, in a layback report to newsmen on doctors' autonomy of Stennis' condition, said the senator rested comfortably during the night and that "vital signs continue to be good."

These include such things as heart beat and blood pressure.

One of two bullets that struck Stennis did, practically all the damage, ranging from his left chest downward through his abdomen and lodging in the lower back. The other wound was in the upper left leg.

The bullet men took Stennis' helmet, a gold watch and a quarter. Police said the senator told them he did not resist when they inspected him outside his home, but was shot nevertheless.

"He was able to stammer into his house without aid after being shot, and instructed his wife to call the hospital and the police."

Stennis' excellent health for a man his age was said to be a major factor in his ability so far to fight off the effects of the attack. But Maj. Frank Garland, an information officer at Walter Reed, and Esker said Stennis' prognosis is still guarded.

"This apparently means that doctors don't say whether he will survive, Garland was told. If Stennis' life was in danger."

"Any person who seriously ill faces this danger," he replied. "That is certainly true in the senator's case."

Gem student rights set out

By DAVID ESPO, Times-News writer

BOISE — A pamphlet published this week by the State Department and Board of Education establishing "guidelines" for regulations governing student "rights and responsibilities."

Among the topics covered in the guidelines, set out in a 14-page publication entitled "Student Rights and Responsibilities" are dress and grooming codes, the treatment of unmarried pregnant students, the role of school newspapers and search and seizure of students' property.

The purpose of the guidelines is "essentially advisory and persuasive, in the pamphlet notes in an introduction and does not 'advocate a philosophy of student rights' teacher rights' or 'administrator rights.'"

Among its guidelines:

— An attorney general's opinion stating that the "mere fact of pregnancy 'shouldn't be reason for exclusion of a married student from school and should be extended to include non-married pregnant students."

Students shouldn't be excluded from extracurricular activities for "arbitrary rules" such as personal appearance, sex or race.

— Formalized channels of pupil-board communications should exist. The report notes, without comment, "Students currently participate in non-voting advisors in several boards across the country."

— Student reporters and editors "have a right, and are as free as editors of other newspapers to report the news" and to editorialize, "within certain bounds, which include the responsibility to refrain from libel and obscenity, and to observe the normal rules for journalism."

— "The school should not impose limitations on dress in which fashion of taste is the sole consideration, even if a majority of the students have approved a school dress code."

— The publication also reports that court decisions in the area of hair length for students have asked "Does the long hair style interfere with the rights of others?" and "Does it disrupt the educational process?" The answer to the questions, the publication says, is "Generally, no."

The publication also says students have a right to see their personal school records, "not merely what school officials want them to see."

The guidelines also deal with areas such as protection from search and seizure of personal property for the students, while maintaining for the schools the right to search to protect the safety of the students.

The guidelines, while not official requirements of school districts, in the state, nevertheless touch on areas that have been controversial in the past several years.

The Jerome School Board has been involved recently with students whose hair length and mustaches violated the school dress code, while in Shoshone, an "underground" student newspaper has accused the anger of some of the local trustees.

Magic Valley school districts also have varying policies on allowing pregnant women students to remain in school.

Chou upbraids US

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai accused the United States today of failing to stop the "outlet of aggression" against Communist North Vietnam.

The Premier, speaking at a news conference, said the United States had "not done its duty" in stopping the aggression against Communist North Vietnam.

He said the United States had "not done its duty" in stopping the aggression against Communist North Vietnam.

Woodcock says price controls have been ineffective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock today said President Nixon's price controls were meaningless, his wage controls inequitable, and Congress should allow both of them to die.

Instead, Woodcock told the Senate Banking Committee, Congress should enact the DAW's long-proposed price-wage review board, which he said could throw the light of publicity on the big corporations, such as General Motors, who he said set prices without regard to market competition or the public's welfare.

Woodcock's was the first labor leader to testify on Nixon's request for a one-year extension in April 28, 1971, of his power to set wage and price controls, and he is likely to be the harshest critic of administration policy.

Other labor leaders, including AFL-CIO President George Meany, apparently have buried the hatchet with Nixon and will not oppose his wage-price policies under Phase III.

Nixon's Phase III controls have relaxed restraints on all of the economy except the health, medical and construction industries.

Woodcock said the powers granted by Congress "are subject to abuse and they have been and are being abused. They have been used ineffectively with respect to prices and inequitably, with respect to wages."

He said the consumer price index had already showed from an annual rate of 6.3 per cent to 3.8 per cent during the period of 1971 before controls were imposed. The annual rate of increase has fallen to 3.2 per cent, but "it is questionable whether the FSA (Economic Stabilization Act) deserves credit even for that small difference."

While price controls have been essentially meaningless, wage control have been all too effective, and have inflicted grave inequities on workers," he said. "In the private non-farm economy, during the latest six months for which data are available, while productivity rose at an annual rate of 5.8 per cent — far above the normal rate — the buying power of average hourly compensation of employees rose at a rate of only 2 per cent per year."

Woodcock said the administration had aggravated the inequities of inflation by allowing prices to rise "even in cases where profits are already at exorbitant levels," and by blocking non-inflationary wage increases.
