Dear Mr

Re Account:

Thank you for your letter dated November 2009.

Regarding your recent letter concerning the Banks alleged breach of the CCA, I would advise you of the following.

Any request for a copy of an executed agreement under s78(1), states that the company must meet it's statutory requirements by providing a 'true copy' of the agreement relevant to the card product at the date the card agreement was made, plus a copy of the terms of the card product. These copies should be accompanied by the statement of financial information relating to the account.

When responding to requests under S78 we are compliant if we provide a 'true copy' of the agreement in accordance with Regulations 3(2) and 7 (1) (b) of the Consumer Credit (Cancellation Notices and Copies of Documents) Regulations 1983. This means that there is no obligation for us to provide a copy of the original agreement bearing signatures. Additionally, under Regulation 3 (2) a 'true copy' does not need to contain all personal information relating to the borrower, nor does it need to include a signature box or dates of signatures.

We have supplied a copy of the credit agreement that you agreed to after which you then received your credit card. We have also supplied a copy of the original and current Terms and Conditions of that card product with the prescribed terms and a statement showing the outstanding balance. We have advised you who you need to contact to discuss amounts due and owing, and future payments that must be paid. We have therefore met our obligations under s78(1) to provide a copy of that executed agreement and again we are satisfied that what was provided complied with the Regulations expressly made for controlling what is a 'true copy'.

I must therefore inform you that we see no reason to enter into further correspondence with you about alleged CCA breaches. If you are not satisfied with this response, you may seek whatever legal redress you consider is open to you.

We do not consider this account to be in dispute and your indebtedness on this account remains due and payable and we will be pursuing for the full repayment. All non payments have been recorded on your credit file as has the default due to non payment.

I suggest that you take advice from your local Citizen's Advice Bureau or other similar organisation if you continue to doubt the veracity of what we have told you about our having complied with our obligations under s78(1).
